REFERRAL OF AGENCY REPORTS

State of Wisconsin
Environmental Education Board
Madison

September 2003

To the Honorable, the Legislature:

The 2001-2003 period saw a number of changes to the Wisconsin Environmental Education Board and its programs.

As the WEEB strives to incorporate new initiatives, it continues to work diligently to provide opportunities for Wisconsin residents to learn about the importance of creating and maintaining sustainable economic and ecological environments in the state. This report provides an overview of the projects that have been made possible over the last two years by the WEEB grant program. The diversity of projects attests to the many venues of daily life environmental education permeates. Environmental education ensures our Wisconsin heritage of concern and stewardship for our environment will continue for generations to come.

If, as you review this report, questions arise, please don't hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,
RICK KOZIEL
Chairperson

Referred to committee on Natural Resources.

AGENCY REPORTS

State of Wisconsin
Legislative Audit Bureau
Madison

October 21, 2003

To the Honorable, the Legislature:

At the request of several legislators, we have conducted a review of state efforts to combat chronic wasting disease (CWD), a fatal neurological disease that affects members of the deer family. The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has primary responsibility for coordinating CWD management efforts in Wisconsin, in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP), the Department of Health and Family Services, and the University of Wisconsin. Through fiscal year (FY) 2002-03, we estimate these state agencies spent a total of $14.7 million combating the disease. The majority of expenditures - 64.9 percent - supported the salaries and benefits of an estimated 122.8 full-time equivalent employees dedicated to CWD efforts in FY 2002-03.

DNR had the largest share of CWD-related expenditures. Its spending totaled $12.6 million, including $4.0 million for the collection and extraction of deer tissue and for constructing and modifying facilities in which to conduct this work. At $2.0 million, costs associated with herd reduction and carcass disposal represented the second-largest expenditure category. In addition, DATCP spent a total of $1.1 million on CWD activities, primarily for regulating and preventing disease among farm-raised deer; the University of Wisconsin Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory spent $924,000 to test deer tissue for the presence of CWD; and the Department of Health and Family Services spent $49,000 to review potential links between CWD and a related disease in humans.

A number of questions regarding efforts to contain CWD will need to be addressed in the future, including how best to ensure the effectiveness of herd depopulation efforts, ensure cooperation between DNR and DATCP in the regulation of farm-raised deer, make the greatest use of a new tissue digester that will likely provide a less-costly means of disposal than incineration, and ensure the most appropriate allocation of limited resources.

I hope you find this information helpful. We appreciate the courtesy and cooperation extended to us by DNR, DATCP, the Department of Health and Family Services, and the University of Wisconsin Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory.

Sincerely,
JANICE MUELLER
State Auditor
